DAWN TO DUSK

ON JUNE 20, 2024, we will experience 14 hours, 59 minutes and 16 seconds of daylight. I realize this is the same every year, save for a second or two, but it's still worth celebrating. I am a doer, and since my body tends to follow that circadian influence of light and dark, I love the long summer days because I can do even more.

If you're the same, that's good news for packing in some action this summer, and Colorado delivers in spades. Pull up your Google calendar and check out Sizzling Summer Festivals on page 40 for a season's worth of fun you won't want to miss. From the Western Slope to south Denver, there's something everyone is sure to love. You can even create your festival plans to coincide with a circular trip around our great state's rugged and beautiful southwestern area (Cruising the San Juan Skyway, page 32). The more daylight you have, the more adventure you can pack into your day!

If you're considering a move anytime soon, check out The Village at Castle Pines for a luxury lifestyle upgrade. In Prestige In the Pines (page 22), writer Kim D. McHugh highlights the amenities and striking beauty the late Jack A. Vickers envisioned when his gated golf community opened in 1981. It's only improved since, and its convenient location is a top choice among relocating residents and newcomers to the Centennial State.

With all these hours to soak up some rays—whether purposefully or just as an aside to your outdoor activities—you need to keep your skin protected and hydrated. Writer Lexi Reich talked to local skincare experts who share some top tips for keeping your skin healthy in Revamp Your Summer Skincare on page 56.

Happy Father's Day to all of the dads out there. May you enjoy every extra daylight moment with your little—or not-so-little—ones!

TOAST IS THE HOST for a variety of fresh toppings at this fast-casual dining spot

By Jay McKinney

Photography Courtesy of Toastique Greenwood Village

AVOCADO TOAST STARTED IT ALL.

In the 1980s, avocados began moving into the mainstream U.S. food culture as we made a narrative shift toward wellness. In the early 1990s, the late Australian chef Bill Granger put avocado toast on his restaurant menu—a reported first. But it wasn't until 2013 when Gwyneth Paltrow put a recipe for avocado toast in her cookbook, "It's All Good," that the internet's ears perked up. In her follow-up cookbook, "It's All Easy," the actress-turned-lifestyle-businesswoman and influencer included three avocado toast recipes. Then Kylie Jenner posted an Instagram story showing how she makes the now infamous dish.

Today, gourmet toast with towering fresh toppings and often Insta-worthy presentations grace menus across the U.S. and beyond. Fast-casual franchise Toastique takes it one step further: Toast is the bread and butter—pun intended—of this restaurant's offerings.

Colorado has five Toastique locations, and on January 1, 2024, Stephen and Melissa Stewart became the proud new owners of the Greenwood Village location. The husband-wife duo is thriving with their acquisition of Toastique, and they love serving the delicious meals that the restaurant is known for. While the Stewarts have run other businesses in the past, this is the couple's first venture into the restaurant industry, and they have elevated the customer service to match the quality of the food.

From cultivating a great team of employees to rearranging the dining area and bringing in an assortment of plants, Melissa Stewart says customers have taken notice. The restaurant is open daily from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and is trending among nearby office workers and those who live in Greenwood Village.

"We're a quick-service restaurant," Melissa Stewart says. "You can come here and get a healthy, delicious meal in a short amount of time." She notes that many patrons are on a quick lunch break and need to grab a meal and go. They are thankful for a fast, healthy option.

Toastique prides itself on its fantastic menu that uses the freshest ingredients and never added preservatives. Diners can easily fall in love with the classic Avocado Smash that includes watermelon radishes, marinated tomatoes and microgreens on a thick slice of multigrain toast. Melissa and Stephen are particularly fond of the Avocado Smash and add crab meat to theirs, but they encourage customers to explore some of the other toasty creations. Dishes like the Tuscan Tuna, Tomato Burrata and Three Cheese Italian are mouthwatering and indeed fodder for Instagram.

“When you see our toasts, they are like works of art,” Melissa Stewart says. “What it looks like on the website is what it will look like when it comes out. I would say ninety-nine percent of the people that order take pictures of their food.”

For those who steer clear of bread, there’s no need to worry. Toastique offers a variety of bowls that are equally delicious and healthy. According to Melissa Stewart, the PB+B Bowl is undisputedly the favorite, but there’s no wrong choice. Be different and try the Black Mystique, which includes activated charcoal, blueberry, strawberry and coconut water topped with goji berries, granola, kiwi, coconut, strawberries and a drizzle of honey.

While its healthy meals are sure to fend off an afternoon crash better than a cheeseburger and fries, Toastique also offers smoothies and cold-pressed juice and has a full-service espresso bar. In fact, many of the customers stop in just for the coffee. Of course, there’s WiFi for those who wish to bring their laptops and work remotely—or to Instagram their meals.

MODERN MARKET EATERY'S SUMMER MENU ADDS CHILLED HERB SHRIMP

Colorado-born in 2009, Modern Market Eatery has been a beloved destination for wellness-minded, busy foodies. With 18 restaurants across the Front Range, they've been spreading the joy of wholesome, chef-crafted fare one made-from-scratch dish at a time.

The menu of salads, grain bowls, sandwiches and pizzas changes twice a year to reflect seasonality and incorporate produce at the peak of flavor. The brand just announced the addition of a brand new protein option to its summer menu, Chilled Herb Shrimp! This certified sustainable protein takes center stage in dishes like the Shrimp BLT Salad, Green Goddess Shrimp Bowl, and the Chilled Herb Shrimp Protein Bowl.

"I went to culinary school for farm-to-table cuisine, so I always start with what's in season,"

CHEF NATE WEIR

Modern Market Eatery also added a Sweet Corn Chicken Pizza, packed with tons of delicious corn flavor from the sweet corn puree on the bottom to the roasted corn salsa on top. Plus, they gave a few crowd favorites, the Urban Farmer Salad and the Summer Seared Ahi Salad, a sun-kissed seasonal glow-up.

VP of Culinary Chef Nate Weir has always had a soft spot for seasonal cooking.

"I went to culinary school for farm-to-table cuisine, so I always start with what's in season," said Chef Nate. "That's what I love about changing our menu twice a year. Endless opportunities for exploration and creativity."

From indulgent staples to healthy, seasonal dishes, Modern Market Eatery has a menu the whole family can agree on. So soak up the sun with the limited-time summer menu today! 🌞

Loving Outdoor Living

Crafting the perfect extension to your home to
ENJOY FOR ALL OUR BEAUTIFUL COLORADO SEASONS

By Lexi Reich with Heather Shoning

FINDING SOLACE IN outdoor spaces has become more than a trend; it's a necessity. As the boundaries between indoor and outdoor living blur, crafting timeless outdoor spaces that integrate nature with comfort and style has become an art form. From sprawling gardens to cozy balconies, the possibilities are endless when it comes to creating outdoor sanctuaries that stand the test of time.

"The thing about a house is all you have is a house," says Joseph Nguyen, owner of Dream Makers Landscape. "Once you finish a backyard, you're living outside. In Colorado, our weather is nice probably eighty-five percent of the year. Even if it's chilly in the morning or evening, it's a perfect time to turn that fire pit on, cook some s'mores, hang out."

But in the realm of landscape design, where nature meets human habitation, there exists a delicate balance between functionality, aesthetics and harmony with the environment. With more than a decade in the industry, Greg Bobich, owner of Watermark Landscape, combines artistry and practicality into his approach to creating outdoor living spaces.

The pros agree that thoughtful design ensures every element serves a purpose, whether it's a seating area for intimate gatherings or a fire pit for evenings under the stars. Bobich advises to consider the layout carefully, allowing for smooth circulation and creating distinct zones for dining, lounging and entertainment.

"Square patios often work best with multiple large chairs, whereas rectangular patios work best with loveseats or sofas," says Lesley Short, of Lehrer Fireplace & Patio. "You also need to consider whether you want to face the fireplace or face other people, with the fireplace as an accessory that melts into the background."

Then, it's time to style. From traditional to contemporary to rustic modern, professional designers cater to a spectrum of tastes with a distinct Colorado flair. Bobich says he uses locally sourced materials such as moss rock and granite to imbue each project with a sense of place, while the design blends with the natural surroundings.

"Mixing prints with solids is a good way to coordinate seating sections without matching perfectly," Short says. She also notes that as Colorado has some of the harshest weather conditions for outdoor furniture, selecting a high-quality outdoor fabric such as Sunbrella, is essential. She also suggests that if your furniture is under pollen trees or near highly reflective windows, you should keep covers on the cushions to keep them clean and protected from sun damage.

As trends in outdoor living evolve, Bobich emphasizes the importance of timeless principles. Selecting colors and features that resonate with personal preferences is paramount, with the recommendation to live in the space for a while before making permanent decisions. Implementation in phases allows for gradual refinement, ensuring the space evolves organically with the needs of the inhabitants.

Whether nestled in the mountains or amidst urban sprawl, designs should ultimately harmonize with their surroundings. Yet blending outdoor living spaces with the natural environment requires a keen understanding of both architectural context and ecological considerations.

DWELLING WELL // outdoor living

Native plantings, gravel pathways and boulder accents can be carefully curated to complement the local ecosystem, enhancing rather than detracting from the landscape.

The creation of distinct outdoor “rooms,” each serving a specific purpose, fosters a sense of cohesion. Tailoring the design to suit the needs and preferences of the homeowners is paramount.

“Most of the time when we do a pool, we’re building a spa either up against the pool or somewhere in the backyard,” Nguyen says. It’s what his clients want. Outdoor kitchens are another popular request for Nguyen and local appliance showroom Mountain High Appliance. Kapono Etrata, territory manager for Mode Distributing, LLC, works with Mountain High Appliance to build an inventory of outdoor kitchen products to serve Denver-area families. He says, “The goal is to provide a space that can create memories. We understand that time is valuable, so we provide products for outdoor kitchens that enable the family to remain outdoors while entertaining.”

Addressing challenges posed by terrain constraints or limited space requires innovation and creativity. However, when you engage a professional team of designers and retailers to guide you through the process, you can achieve the outdoor living space of your dreams. “At the end of the day, pick what’s going to make you happy,” Bobich says. “As landscape designers, our goal is to make sure the client has a space they can enjoy for years to come.”

Kapono Etrata is a valuable supporter of Wheels of Dreams—AvidLifestyle’s signature fundraising event—and brings a complete grill setup for Mountain High Appliance’s personal chef station. Additionally, Dream Makers Landscaping provides plants, flowers and outdoor lighting for WOD guests to enjoy during the event. Scan the code for event info and tickets.

PRESTIGE IN THE PINES

MANY FACTORS DETERMINE QUALITY OF LIFE, and they all stack up in the south metro suburbs

By Kim D. McHugh

Photography Courtesy of The Village at Castle Pines

IN THE MOVIE “Field of Dreams,” Ray Kinsella imagines hearing a sports announcer say, “If you build it, he will come.” Those words encouraged the farmer, played by Kevin Costner, to create a baseball diamond in his cornfield to honor Shoeless Joe Jackson, his favorite player. In the spirit of that premise, the late Jack A. Vickers perhaps heard a similar phrase, inspiring him to build Castle Pines, the prestigious community just north of Castle Rock.

Captivated by the landscape and breathtaking Front Range views, Vickers bought the land in the late 1970s that now encompasses The Village at Castle Pines (VACP), a gated, 3000-acre master-planned oasis that debuted in 1981. Anchored by two Jack Nicklaus–designed golf courses—Castle Pines Golf Club and the Country Club at Castle Pines—for generations, the community has attracted residents who embrace an outdoor-centric lifestyle, premier golf and exceptional privacy.

“We have been residents for twenty-two years. Initially, our daughter lived with us, and having a place where she could ride her bike on our cul-de-sac and in the neighborhood without much traffic was a big factor in deciding to live here,” says Jack O’Connor, broker/owner at The Denver 100 real estate agency.

“Secondly, the beauty of the area: It feels like we come home to a resort every time we drive down Happy Canyon Road.”

Located within the Douglas County School District, the covenant-managed community is just eight miles from the Denver Tech Center, eight miles from Castle Rock and 37 miles from DIA. A fully staffed, in-house emergency services department as well as five entry and exit gates, each monitored by security personnel, provide extraordinary peace of mind for residents.

With its tapestry of rolling hills, meadows, rock outcroppings and innumerable stands of mature pines, VACP gives residents the feeling they live in a mountain town like Breckenridge, Vail or Winter Park. However, they are just 24 miles from downtown Denver. Ranging from condominiums, cluster and patio homes to single-family homes on acreages, VACP offers options from its initial 1980s homes as well as new inventory and custom-built homes reflecting today’s contemporary architecture and styling. The family-oriented community boasts a walking/hiking/biking trail system that extends more than 13 miles with five pocket parks.

Surrounded by open space, Coyote Ridge Park spans nearly thirty acres and features a baseball field, skate park and shaded pavilions. The Village’s largest playground is located at the Canyon Club. The club has five tennis courts, four pickleball courts, a basketball court, a sand volleyball court, plus a kiddie pool and an Olympic-sized pool with a water slide.

A short drive from the community, The Village Shops offers an array of restaurants and retailers, including Tony’s Meats & Market, Miyo Cafe and the Woodhouse Spa, as well as special events like vintage car shows, wine tastings and art shows.

“My husband and I wanted a home suited for our busy, empty-nester lifestyle,” says longtime resident Pam Kelly. “We chose the south side, which is very walkable to Tony’s, restaurants and the spa. The Village is very active and diverse, with people of all ages looking for a quiet lifestyle among the elk, deer and foxes.

I have belonged to the Garden Club for eight years and made extraordinary friends.”

Without question, the community’s pair of Nicklaus-designed golf courses enrich the lifestyle of club members. Perched at nearly seven thousand feet, The Country Club at Castle Pines has garnered accolades from Golf, Colorado AvidGolfer and Golf Digest magazines, the latter placing it among the top 20 private courses in Colorado. Host of The International, a PGA Tour favorite for 21 years, the perennially top-ranked Castle Pines Golf Club is hosting the 2024 BMW Championship in late August.

Cruising the San

EXPERIENCE A SUMMER PARADISE along this Western Colorado loop

By Julie Bielenberg

THE SAN JUAN SKYWAY is a seven-hour scenic loop through southwestern Colorado's rugged country with charming Victorian mountain hamlets, remote rivers and valleys, a national park, and two national monuments, not to mention legendary ski towns turned summer paradise.

Start in Ouray for a clockwise loop. Plan an overnight at Box Canyon Hot Springs for access to their private pools or visit Ouray Hot Springs pool in town for a soak. Don't miss Khristopher's Culinaire on Main Street, a nearly two-decades-old independent kitchen store with aisles packed with goodies. Ouray is also the beginning point for the Million Dollar Highway, aptly named for the one million dollars it took per mile to build the road in the 1880s in addition to the million-dollar vistas. This 25-mile southern stretch between Ouray and Silverton is revered as one of the most scenic drives in America.

Upon arrival in Silverton, about 45 minutes from Ouray, road-trippers will be immediately entranced by the high-altitude mining town turned base camp of outdoor adventure. The National Historic Landmark District has views of numerous 14ers located within just a few miles of the town.

Next, travel south on Highway 550, following the Animas River until you arrive in Durango, one of the largest towns on the Western Slope and home to Fort Lewis College. There's the historic downtown and train depot for the infamous Durango & Silverton Narrow Gauge Railroad. Numerous breweries, farm-to-fork eateries, and an easily navigable bike trail are all located in the heart of this quaint town.

If you're looking for an overnight, head west on Highway 160—the next leg of the route—a few miles and bed down at Blue Lake Ranch in Hesperus. This long-established boutique hotel and private ranch is vivacious in summer with wildflowers. Each morning's southwestern breakfast, made-to-order, is included in the price.

A half-hour more on the San Juan Skyway will put travelers in Mancos, an artist and ancient community. There's Mancos State Park, fishing and rafting in the Mancos River, and easy access to Canyons of the Ancients National Monument along with its visitor center and impressive museum. Along this section of the Skyway is where you can also access Mesa Verde National Park with a fabulous visitor center, mild to challenging hikes and the famed cliff dwellings of the Ancestral Puebloan people. Mesa Verde is the only National Park dedicated solely to ancient human communities.

Heading northwest, you will cruise by thousands of acres of the San Juan National Forest, take in views of McPhee Reservoir, which has access to paddleboarding and fishing, before you drive through Dolores, an agricultural hub. Stop at Dolores Brewery, open Tuesday through Sunday, for craft beer, pizza, salads and more.

Follow the Dolores River northeast, driving through the towns of Stoner and then Rico. Open mid-May through fall, the Fireweed Cafe and Mercantile in Rico has hot and cold beverages, a seasonal menu and plenty to choose from for a picnic along the next leg of your trip. Telluride is your next destination—an iconic ski town, mountain festival mecca

travel wear

STEREOTYPE WARNING: It's not often you hear of a man packing more clothing for a trip than a woman. However, when Kelly Watters and her husband Will found themselves living the Colorado life—going from multiple outdoor activities a day straight to meetings with clients while also traveling abroad for work, that's exactly what happened. Kelly had access to performance clothing that transitioned not only across different situations but also socially. Will struggled to find anything that would do the same, finding very gear- or sports-specific options that didn't quite transition into social situations while on the road. He was packing heavier than Kelly when they traveled.

One of the best ways to start a business is to see a need and fill it. So, they did.

The couple, with Kelly at the helm as co-founder and president and Will as co-founder and creative director—fueled by determination—founded Western Rise with an adventurous spirit and a lofty goal: to provide a single set of men's performance clothing for every day and every occasion. What's better than that?

By creating versatile, high-quality, stylish—and sustainable clothing, Western Rise enables modern travelers to carry less and experience more. Its products revolutionize how modern travelers experience the world, focusing on four key elements: technical materials, advanced treatments, timeless styles and premium construction. They also use sustainable fabrics, carbon neutrality and ethical manufacturing. >>>

“We focus a lot on longevity, style and durability. We want you to be able to roll up a pair of pants in your bag, have them take up less room than a T-shirt, and then wear them for ten days while being odor-resistant, not showing signs of wear, or needing to be washed,” Kelly Watters says. “It’s a different use case that we design for; that makes what we offer very different from other products on the market.”

In addition to the core essential pieces Western Rise currently offers (travel and everyday pants, merino button-downs, classic tees and more), the brand plans an expansion into womenswear in 2026. Continuing with the mission to simplify people’s lives and to allow travelers to experience more with less, Western Rise intends to launch an entire travel system—not just one travel bag, but a set of five bags that all intermix to allow for a fully custom packable experience depending on your trip and where you’re going.

Should you find yourself in Telluride, Kelly Watters says you can feel free to walk into the Western Rise headquarters to see plans drafted for the following season; otherwise, you can find this online retailer through Nordstrom, Back Country and other specialty retailers across the country. 🐌

revamp your summer skincare

EXPERT ADVICE + product recommendations from local estheticians

By Lexi Reich

AS TEMPERATURES RISE and the sun graces us with its warmth, it's time to reassess our skincare routines to ensure our skin stays healthy and glowing throughout the summer months. With longer days and increased UV exposure, our skin requires special attention to maintain its youthful glow and resilience against the elements. Whether you're aiming to ward off wrinkles or achieve that coveted dewy freshness, we reached out to a panel of local skincare experts for their tips to ensure a radiant season ahead.

BASIC SKINCARE

Melanie Maestas, lead esthetician at Spavia Greenwood Village, emphasizes the importance of exfoliation, hydration and sun protection as the cornerstone of a summer skincare regimen.

"The best way to overhaul your skincare regimen for the summer is to exfoliate, hydrate and protect," she advises. She recommends using a cleanser enriched with vitamin C and glycolic acids for gentle daily exfoliation. For a deeper exfoliation, she suggests the FarmHouse Fresh Thyme Swipe peel pads, containing a blend of chemical exfoliants that help to gently dissolve dead skin cells—ideal for achieving a fresh, dewy look before a special occasion.

"Always drink a lot of water," Maestas says. "It helps to keep those fresh, new skin cells plump."

Alana MacKinnon, senior skin therapist at Heyday University Hills, believes in a clean and simple skincare routine, focusing on hydration and gentle cleansing for a dewy fresh complexion. She recommends One Love Organics Botanical B Enzyme Cleansing Oil for its vitamin E content and fruit enzymes, which gently resurface the skin for a bright, glowing appearance. Following cleansing, MacKinnon suggests using a toner to rebalance the skin and add moisture. In the mornings, she advocates for the use of a vitamin C serum to protect the skin from free radicals and improve overall skin tone.

FIGHT DAMAGE + AGING

Experts agree on the importance of incorporating antioxidant serums and SPF into your summer routine. Maestas highlights the FarmHouse Fresh Vitamin C Booster as a lightweight antioxidant serum that protects the skin from free radicals and imparts a healthy glow. She advises following up with a broad-spectrum SPF, such as FarmHouse Fresh's SPF 30 with vitamin C, E and B3, which not only protects against UV damage but also helps reduce wrinkles. The new tinted formula offers the convenience of skipping makeup while ensuring sun protection.

Like Maestas, MacKinnon emphasizes the crucial role of sunscreen in protecting the skin from the aging effects of UV radiation. Citing the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, she notes that up to 90 percent of visible skin changes attributed to aging are caused by the sun. Therefore, wearing sunscreen daily is non-negotiable for maintaining youthful, healthy-looking skin.

NIGHTTIME ROUTINE

For nighttime skincare, MacKinnon stresses the importance of thoroughly removing makeup and sunscreen with a double cleanse. "Don't cheat yourself by using a makeup wipe; it will not be enough to remove all the residue," she emphasizes. Instead, she recommends using an oil cleanser or micellar water followed by a more active cleanser like the Indie Lee Brightening Cleanser, formulated to combat dehydration and hyperpigmentation.

In short, a comprehensive summer skincare routine involves exfoliation, hydration, antioxidant protection and diligent sun protection. These research-backed strategies, combined with expert advice, can guide you toward a regimen that ensures your skin remains radiant throughout the warm months ahead.

Golfing Lifestyle

WOMEN ON COURSE embraces networking, wine tasting, travel and friendship, with or without teeing up

By Jamie Lynn Miller

Photography Courtesy of Women on Course

TRAVEL JUNKIE, lifestyle enthusiast and founder of Women on Course, a celebration of all things golf, Donna Hoffman wasn't always a fan of the sport. In fact, she used to reject everything about it.

"My first husband was an avid golfer, and I considered myself a golf widow," Hoffman says of the couple's disparate lifestyles. "I swore I wouldn't date another man who was into golf."

But then someone introduced her to the sport differently. "He gave me the right club," she says, "and had a glass of chardonnay waiting for me. He said, 'This relationship won't work if you don't like golf.'"

During their golf trip to Arizona, Hoffman was struck by the perks that accompany the sport, from outdoor beauty to the indoor luxuries of resort settings. They brainstormed how to break down barriers to the sport so that more women would enter—and enjoy—the game.

And so, Women on Course (WOC) was born, an endeavor for lifestyle enthusiasts who embrace the entirety of golf culture—the travel, the apparel, playing or watching in a social setting. While not all members play golf, explains Hoffman, everyone embraces the lifestyle.

With markets nationwide, WOC's Denver market launched in 2008, a by-product of a happy hour held at Fleming's Steakhouse. "People were asking about golf events and membership," Hoffman recalls, "and I said they didn't need to be a member to come on out."

At some point, however, she realized they wanted a club they could join. "So, I started a company!" she says.

The Denver market has experienced the biggest jump in participation, with nearly 2000 people in its database. "Our area leader, Sandra Ivey, is a strong bridge between members and guests," says Hoffman. "There's a real enthusiasm for Women on Course."

There are varying levels of membership for how one interprets the lifestyle. There's the 19th Hole Golfer, dedicated to the social aspects and networking; there's a learning level with one-hour clinics with a pro and a few holes of golf. And for those who are course-ready, there's a level for 9 or 18 holes of golf.

With golf comes travel, something Women on Course does well. Hoffman recently organized an all-inclusive adventure to the Dominican Republic, and an upcoming project involves a new show called "Golf Partners," in which eight people will tell their stories, and then people vote for their favorite partner. In March, WOC headed to Palm Springs, and "Golf Partners" candidates were in tow. "I thought I'd have a few volunteers," she says, "but more than 50 people wanted to participate in the show!"

While non-members can sign up for an event for a $10 booking fee, members enjoy discounts to different apparel partners and opportunities in any market, from wine tastings and fashion events to finding a golfing partner through the club's directory.

One of the most valuable things members enjoy, says Hoffman, is access to an exceptional group of women. "Women are very intent on wanting me to know how WOC changed their lives. 'If it wasn't for WOC,' they say, 'I wouldn't have met this lifelong friend.'"

DONNA HOFFMAN, FOUNDER OF WOMEN ON COURSE

MOMMY & ME MINDFULNESS

The benefits of meditations designed specifically for children include improving mental health, reducing stress, bolstering coping skills, and enhancing relaxation and sleep. This series will familiarize children with mindfulness and meditation through activities designed to acquaint them with breathing exercises, emotion recognition and self-regulation. This program takes place entirely outdoors, and a parent or guardian must be present with their child for the duration of the program. DENVER BOTANIC GARDENS, botanicgardens.org

EVENING YOGA IN FESTIVAL PARK

Yoga means “union,” and when practiced outside, you can experience union with nature, humanity and the universe. Being outside deepens the yoga experience in many ways and helps you focus on awareness, breathe deeply and practice stillness. These free classes take place at Amphitheater at Philip S. Miller Park on Sunday mornings or Festival Park on Monday evenings to find a deeper meaning to your yoga workout. Led by the Parks and Recreation Department, each week a different format is featured, including Yoga Foundations, Hatha, Flow to Yin, Elemental and Yin Yoga. CASTLE ROCK, crgov.com

COLORADO RENAISSANCE FESTIVAL
OPENING WEEKEND

Comedy, juggling, magic ... music, sword swallows, steak on a stick! The Colorado Renaissance Festival, open for eight weekends each summer, is something you really have to experience to believe. Stroll among costumed merrymakers—you can dress up too—feasting on foods fit for a king (or queen), dance along to 16th-century music, watch artisans in actions and experience “acts that will amaze you, bonk you on the head and make you spew with laughter.” Weekends through August 4th.
